

The Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary is an urban wildlife refuge located in north eastern Green Bay. 55 out of 535 acres of park land are water. The property was originally part of the marsh ecosystem found on the southern end of the bay at the mouth of the Fox River. For over 40 years the wetland served as a landfill site for the community and industry. The first parcel of land was set aside in 1935 for injured waterfowl;

this was the start of habitat improvement. In the succeeding years, a mixture of habitats have been encouraged: forest, wetland, and prairie.

Spring and Autumn migration bring the greatest number of birds through the Sanctuary. 265 species have been recorded in the last 40+ years. Bird walks and programs are offered throughout the year.
